LE WEEK-END is a story about the nature of love and commitment where husband and wife yearn to recapture their youthful fearlessness, lack of responsibility and idealism. A married couple revisits Paris to revitalise their marriage, and runs into an old friend who acts as a catalyst for things to come.

Meg feels she deserves a better life, but at crucial moments we see how insecure and bereft Meg would be without her husband Nick. LE WEEK-END is a delicious 'portrait of a marriage' with all the sensitive imperfections of a life of partnership; it's also a weekend when Nick gets to sing out loud Like a Rolling Stone in his underwear!
